PERSONAL

Maersk Group psychometric test result, September 2013.

"Ambitious, confident self-starter primarily interested in the achievement of tangible results and with a strong emphasis on getting things done right and quickly. Normally impatient for results and tends to push towards getting things done while remaining disciplined, well organized and prepared, taking all things into consideration. Analytical mindset, concerned with developing a high expertise and would often be considered a serious, reserved, pedantic, 'matter of fact' and introspective individual with little interest in small talk. High expectations for self and others, and when delegating work, tend to follow up tightly; quick to spot mistakes and can often be candid and stern in criticism. Normally concerned with detail, correctness and formality while thriving in a fast paced, easy going yet competitive and technical environment."

The above is a suprisingly accurate description for a 3 hour computer based test.
