About Me

Dear Sirs, My name is Andrey Gritsienko. I have progressed from junior officer ranks to captain, relying on discipline, precision, and a systematic approach in my work. My career began in October 2009 as a Third Officer. By 2013, I was working as a Chief Officer, received my Master's license in 2017, and have since been successfully managing vessels. This progression was made possible thanks to my determination, sense of responsibility, and ability to make sound decisions in challenging situations. I have experience with a wide range of cargoes: bulk, general, heavy-lift, containers, and dangerous goods (including Class 7). I've worked on vessels with various technical configurations, including both fixed pitch (FPP) and controllable pitch propellers (CPP), as well as single and twin propeller. A key focus of my work is building a productive and stable crew environment. I oversee both deck and engine department operations, including maintenance, technical condition, repairs, and cargo handling. I effectively manage crew performance and maintain a constructive onboard atmosphere. I act confidently in non-standard situations, keeping a clear mind and a strong sense of responsibility. I also have extensive experience communicating with port authorities, inspection bodies, and service organizations. I'm skilled at building efficient dialogue and finding practical solutions within both international and local regulations. At this stage in my career, I am looking for new opportunities for professional growth — including the chance to serve on vessels of higher tonnage, where my skills and knowledge can be applied to their fullest. My desired salary is from USD 7,000. However, I'm open to discussing the terms depending on the project. I would be glad to discuss your vacancy and am confident that my experience, balanced approach, and leadership capabilities would be of value to your fleet. BRGDS
